WHERE DO THESE PICTURES COME FROM?

All of the abortion images used in the Abort73 website come from the Center for Bio-ethical Reform (CBR). CBR maintains the largest archive of abortion images in existence. All of their videos and photographs were taken inside real working abortion clinics, contracted under guarantees of anonymity. CBR describes the acquisition of their image library as follows:

We are sometimes asked how and from what sources we have compiled our huge library (perhaps the largest in the world) of aborted baby photos and video. Understandably, the terms of our acquisition agreements prohibit the disclosure of that information. If we must divulge this information pursuant to [a lawsuit], we will do so “in camera,” which means in a judge’s chambers, off the record, so the information will be sealed and never made public. It doesn’t take much analytical ability to guess why. We are prepared, however, to say that we reject civil disobedience on tactical grounds (and violence on moral grounds) so we use only lawful means to acquire imagery.

The abortion images you see on the Abort73 website are true to the original. They have not been retouched or digitally altered. The common objects (coins, pencils, etc.) seen in some of the photographs are placed as a size reference and are part of the original photo.
